EPA is committed to working closely with response agencies and state and local officials to ensure the safety of citizens, respond to concerns and to evaluate impact to water contaminated by the Gold King Mine Release. EPA is sharing information as quickly as possible with the public as experts work to evaluate any effects the spill may have on drinking water, public health, agriculture, fish and wildlife. Please see our website for the latest information: <http://www2.epa.gov/region8/gold-king-mine-release-emergency-response>
Regular updates will be posted as they are available.

Its un believable your EPA team breached a debris dam and thought you could play it down by doing nothing. I read in the Wall Street Journal it took you 24 hours to muster some type of response. My concern is simple...your breaching of the debris dam and your lack of action has caused my months long fishing trip to vaporize. I hope that one day there will be fish in the Animas River and truly hope you have polluted another entire river, similar to the river in the east polluted by the EPA.
